WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA

Warmer, drier weather returned today and will last into the middle of the week as high pressure moves through the region. Tuesday looks like the warmest day with the mildest locations in the lower 60s. However, overnight lows will remain quite cold with lows right around freezing for the warmest places. The weather pattern will remain unsettled next week with more precipitation and cooler temperatures expected the latter half of next week.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA

Expect a strong warming trend today and into the first half of the week. There will be some light offshore flow Monday and Tuesday during the night and morning hours. Temperatures the next two days will only be in the 30s in the mountains to the 50s at lower elevations, but by Monday, temperatures will return to near seasonal averages.
